Case in Point

A multi-campus healthcare system with 5,600 employees

Challenge: The client wanted to take a cloud-first approach to reduce their footprint and migrate end-of-support workloads to reduce risk. But they lacked proper governance and best practice compliance in their Microsoft Azure environment.

Solution: Logicalis Professional Services undertook a Cloud Readiness Assessment to understand the client's environment. Using the Microsoft-audited Logicalis Production Ready Cloud Platform, they created an Azure landing zone to host workloads while hardening the cloud environment. They then designed, deployed and migrated the customer from unsupported servers to the Logicalis Production Ready Cloud Platform to provide extended security support.

Results: With the Logicalis Production Ready Cloud platform, the client solidified the reliability of their Azure footprint. They're now able to use familiar management tools, modernize their apps, address ongoing security concerns, and scale as needed. This secure, reliable cloud environment can now help them transform research into new drugs and treatments that will improve peoples' lives.
